i. Tone from the top:

“Compliance starts at the top. It will be most effective in a corporate culture that emphasizes standards of honesty and integrity and in which the Board of Directors and Senior Management lead by example”¹.

In this context, the Bank’s Board of Directors is responsible among others:

- ▶ to oversee the management of the Bank’s compliance risk;
- ▶ to oversee the implementation of a well-documented compliance policy, which should be communicated to all staff;
- ▶ to ensure that an effective system for implementing this policy is in place, comprising a fundamental component of Bank’s Internal Control System (ICS).
- ▶ to promote on an ongoing basis the compliance culture of the Bank;
- ▶ to monitor and assess on an ongoing basis the compliance risk of the Bank;
- ▶ to set and communicate the Bank’s core values and expectations, and the compliance culture to all staff, with the assistance of the Bank’s Senior Management. The behavior of its members should reflect the values being espoused.

ii. Dedicated function

The Bank has established a permanent and effective Compliance function to manage compliance risk and has appointed a person to be responsible for this function across the entire institution (the Group Chief Compliance and Corporate Governance Officer). The Compliance function, including the head of compliance, is independent of the business lines and internal units it controls and has sufficient authority, stature and resources. Staff within the compliance function possesses sufficient knowledge, skills and experience in relation to compliance and relevant procedures, and has access to regular training.

iii. Compliance concerns everyone

Compliance forms part of the culture of the Bank; it is not just the responsibility of the compliance staff. It concerns everyone within the Bank and should be viewed as an integral part of the Bank’s business activities. All staff acts in accordance with applicable laws and regulations and promptly escalates observed non-compliance issues. The Bank holds itself to high standards when carrying on business, and at all times strives to observe the spirit as well as the letter of the law. Failure to consider the impact of its actions on its shareholders, customers, employees and the markets may result in significant adverse publicity and reputational damage, even if no law has been broken.

The management of compliance risk and the implementation of the Compliance Policy, as approved by the Board, is a key responsibility of all Group staff.

“Defence levels” for the effective prevention and management of Regulatory Compliance risks

Control, prevention and management of Compliance risk is segregated as follows among the three lines of defence within the organisation:

First level of defence: This includes those Divisions of the Bank that develop the Bank's relations with customers-consumers, and the respective Divisions supporting their activity, e.g. Retail Banking, Private Banking, Corporate & Investment Banking etc.

Second level of defence: This includes the Governance and Compliance Function (including the AML/CFT unit), the Risk Management Function, and the Internal Control Function.

An independent compliance function is a key component of the bank's second line of defence. In particular, as provided in the current legislation, the Compliance function, together with the Internal Audit and Risk Management functions, are the units that are responsible for the establishment of the Internal Control System, particularly all the control mechanisms and procedures that cover continuously every activity of the Bank and contribute to its efficient and safe operation.

These control mechanisms aim, inter alia, to identify and address all risks arising in the context of the conduct of the Bank's activities.

Third and last level of defence: This comprises the role of the Internal Audit Divisions, which are responsible for regularly controlling the entire System of Internal Control as per Bank of Greece Governor's Act 2577/9.03.2006 and relevant legal and regulatory framework. In this context, the efficiency of the NBG Group Governance and Compliance Function can be assessed, as well as the overall implementation of the regulatory framework by all of the Group's units, granted that: “Constant compliance with the current legal rules and the prevention and avoidance of risks related to Compliance is an obligation of all departments, bodies and employees of all grades of the Bank and its Group.”
